

Are the Gloves Off?

It would seem that an all out war has begun against humanity by the Ruling Elite and their minions. What I see starting to happen is a complete breakdown in between the Rulers and the Ruled. To challenge authority or rather point out to them that they have no authority is something that they cannot get around. Even with all their tricks one only has to point this out to them and there is absolutely no defense on their part. Rather than deal with the truth though they rather torture and instill fear into people to get their love and affection back. Yes they want to be worshiped and loved as they are doing a dangerous job in keeping you safe and that commands respect right? Look at the monetary system and all that work they did in setting it up so you could have commerce, don't you appreciate it, and don't you just love them all for it and admire them.

It is truly coming down to the simple idea that those who run the system minions and otherwise are your masters and you are their slave. So long as you don't fight back and go along with their plans of creating poverty, disease, environmental destruction and so on, they leave you alone to suffer quietly. Up to now they have had some pretty good mind control things happening for them such as Television and Religion. However more and more people are unplugging from that and looking at the condition that the world is in and start demanding change. Occupy Wall Street although a staged event at least got people thinking, just not thinking the way the Ruling Elite wanted them, which was to start a civil war so they could beat up on population some more.

The media is completely oblivious by design to what is transpiring and we get glimpses through alternative media. However the solutions to it all which resides on the simple realization that Law does not exist in truth and no one has any authority is squashed faster than a bug going into a windshield. It is blatantly obvious where humanity stands if we are ever going to be free; we all have to start to love each other. What I see is that those of us who do love are the first to realize that we can't change those who don't and are imprisoned by their belief in a world of laws and punishment. They have laws to keep everyone safe so you can see that it is based upon fear and not love. Love is not given the chance it needs for if it were no one ever go back to a fear based reality again.

So as the awareness grows the POLICE and COURTS get more and more creative to the point where truth does not matter anymore. There is an individual I was indirectly helping who's house is being foreclosed on without any Judge's signature. The Lawyer and the Crown both conspired to take the property with or without permission of the COURT and the Bailiffs are about to seize the house from what I hear. This of course after telling them she did not wish to contract with them. Part of the problem as well is that in love no one owns anything because we are part of everything rather than separate things that are owned.

The simple idea that what these people do is to trick people into stating in some way that they are a fiction by having them offer a defense based upon law or give a name etc. gives them the authority to own them as their slave, for they own the law and the system. It is a fear and mind only based reality which they use to feed off people as parasites. What happens to people who refuse to identify themselves as a corporate entity fiction to these thugs is completely unbelievable? People are tortured into submission and in some cases murdered, just so someone's ego can be nurtured that they are in power and authority over others. It is not just

Canada that this happens; it is all over the world. Imagine telling the Police in Saudi Arabia that they have no true authority over anyone eh? In Canada the like to withholding food and water to the point where people are nearly die or do die in one case in the Fort Saskatchewan Jail just outside of Edmonton, where one fellow who died was described as being skeletal in appearance. Then there are Solitary Confinement rooms that are smeared with human feces, vomit on the floor and rotting meat in the toilet which gives off carcinogenic vapours that can kill you and you are kept their for a long period of time. Corporal punishment does not resolve anything except to make people sick mentally and break their will perhaps, which is why they do it.

It is much like breaking the spirit of an animal. You torture it until it breaks down and then you can rebuild it into what you want it to be, usually vicious. The Illuminati are very adept in this area for certain. The problem is eventually it leads to disassociation where people cannot feel for others, thus no empathy. The lack of empathy for others throughout the world is stunning to those of us who are. The idea that that you can go and declare war against another Country then go in and kill people is beyond comprehension, but it goes on every day. I always wonder what it takes to be a Soldier or Police Officer when the fundamental purpose for you to do so is to cause harm to others. They are brainwashed into believing that they are serving their Country and upholding the values of the people.

It is such an ego job and it attracts people who can hide behind idealistic honor and be mass murderers, what a con job eh?

It seems to me that this is coming to a head and I think it has already happened in many ways. It frustrates me to no end hearing from people with the inside info that the Ruling Elite are running scared as their system is being taken down around them. Perhaps this is true, but what I do see is that the Police and Military in their façade of honor are destroying the freedom of everyone on this planet and there is very little we can do to show them the truth in what they are doing, for slavery and authority are actually what they truly aspire too. Think about it, they love taking orders and they love dishing out the punishment to others that break the orders or rather laws. They don't associate with people in the community except for those who worship them and hang with others that are like them within the system. They live in a control bubble that only gets burst when they can't plant enough evidence on someone they just beat to oblivion to justify the use of force.

It is sad that this goes on in Canada and other Countries, but then again Countries only exist in the imagination. Imagine for one moment that the idea the Countries do not exist would enter the mind of a Soldier or Police Officer. What would they do? Probably ignore it for they are well paid, much better than someone doing a honest days work of labour and they do not want to be a slave, but rather an enforcer of the slaves so they can have a better life than those they oppress. Government positions generally pay 50% more than the Public Sector and the amount of money that circulates in Politics and the Courts is astronomical. The inner circle of banking and Government are stealing trillions of dollars from people. We could easily create a Paradise for all, but they rather rule over their slaves.

Sadly we have the fear mongers pointing all this out to us, but never the solution to it all except to start a war with them. Perhaps one day it may come to that, but I am hoping for Ascension to bring an end to all of this. It is far too big and vicious to ever be stopped. Those of who are aware are on the hit list, it is only a matter of when. They don't go after us because it awakens to many sheep to do so, thus they like to pick us off one by one as we fall into their scopes. Eventually though too many people will realize that they have no authority and call them on it. At that point the gloves will definitely come off. Are we there yet? We are getting close I think. They can only use brute force against us for so long before the whip matters not to us anymore and we stop playing their games of Separation and go into love.

They are desperate to augment our DNA with these full body scanners, roving Gamma Ray Machines and pharmaceuticals and GM Food. This is because on December 21 or 25, 2012 the blue light from the center of our Galaxy will finally hit earth and transform everything it touches into a new fully active form of life. They think if they can put enough nanoparticles in the atmosphere to reflect it and give us enough DNA altering material that they can stop the transformation from happening, which will allow us to ascend to the 5th dimension leaving the stuck in the 4th dimension. Their actions seem to support that this is indeed what is coming. In the mean time people are awakening more and more based upon the truth vibrations that beating on the consciousness of humanity. The more of us that awaken the harder it becomes for them. If we ascend the parasitic games stop and they die because they have no more fear to feed from, yes we are their food source. But it was their choice to be what they are as well and the consequential energy behind that choice of fear rather than love is coming to bear on them, unfortunately we are merely pawns in this great game for the moment.

Love does not abandon and I think eventually we will be at the point again where we can have a reality based upon love rather than fear. This Golden age stuff is for the birds though, Ascension is where it is at, not staying here to clean up the mess, let's all go where we can be loved and give love.
